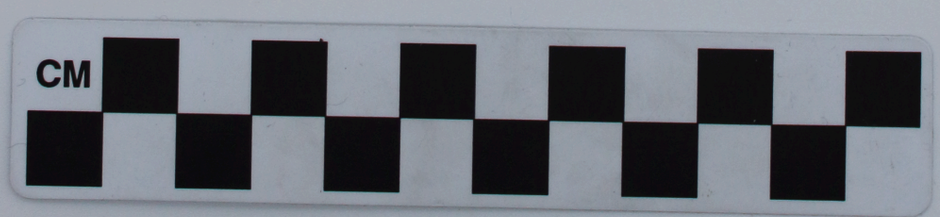
Brownsville, Pa.,
March 30, 1900.

My Dear Miss Hartzell,

It is certainly very kind of you to write to me at all. I have thought of writing to you every day since I recd your letter but indeed I was not strong enough to write: March has given me a rough handling but I guess I will conquer this time.

I guess I am better anyhow I do not have the hemorhages I used to have but I have been so very weak. I hope to be stronger when the weather gets warm.



Yes indeed Dr. Miller is still my Dr. I never expect to have any other Dr. as long as I have the implicit confidence in him as a physician. He has been so kind to me as he is to all his patients.

Mrs Miller has been ill also the little daughter had Diphtheria they both recovered. Sara Milliken one of last years class was in the Drs. family all the time and I hear he was well pleased with her.

This is stale news but I thought you would be interested.

Sara Milliken is a Boonville girl. I will be pleased to give the Dr. your new address if you have not written.

I often see your friend Mrs. Fisher passing. I have had her pointed out to me so often that I have learned to know her when I see her. So I suppose she has good health when she goes out so much.

April 5=

My Dear Miss Hartzell. I have been so miserable since I started to write to that it was impossible for me to finish your letter. I know you will pardon the delay.

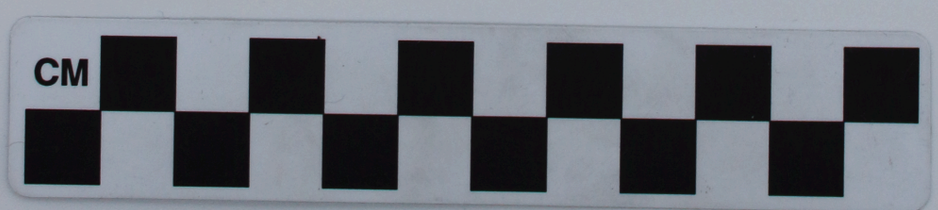
Dr. Miller called in to see

Tuesday evening. I gave him your last address. He is so kind to me. I would not give him for the whole staff at the H. H. He said he thought his wife would like you so much for a nurse.

I believe Mrs. Miller has been in poor health I thought she had resigned.

Do you ever hear from Miss McCarty. I think of her so often since I have been sick. You know she was my roommate and a very congenial one.

With best wishes and love for you I am,

Sincerely yours


Cecilia E. Abel.
